NATIONAL PRESS CLUB RESPONSE 17/6/26

Statement attributable to SBS spokesperson:

“SBS does not provide commentary on the policies of political parties, consistent with our obligations as an impartial public broadcaster.”

On background:

SBS has provided trusted Australian multilingual news, content and information for over 50 years – helping Australians understand one another and participate fully in Australian society.

Australians place strong trust in SBS, with the Reuters Digital News Report ranking SBS equal first among Australian news organisations for trust (refer to <https://www.sbs.com.au/aboutus/2026/06/16/australians-place-growing-trust-in-sbs-news/>) and SBS Examines helping to counter online misinformation.

Every day, millions of Australians across the country consume SBS’s free, trusted and quality content on a range of platforms including TV, streaming, radio, apps, websites, podcasts and social media.

QUERIES

s47F here from the ABC, I'm putting together Afternoon Briefing with Patricia Karvelas.

Would an SBS spokesperson be available to come on our programme today to address Senator Pauline Hanson's NPC comments about SBS? We are on air between 4 and 5pm.

SBS News s22

Hope you are well. I'm reaching out for a response to comments being made by Pauline Hanson at National Press Club about mainstream media and, specifically, on SBS.

She says: “Rest assured, there will be big changes if One Nation is given the chance. The SBS will be gone. There’s no need for it anymore; the internet has overtaken the need for it.”

For your background, she proposes to make ABC a subscription-only service in the city, and taxpayer-funded only in regional, rural and remote areas.

And further, she makes these comments on trust:

“Remember this: I don’t answer to the media. I answer to the Australian people. Australians’ trust in the media, the government and public institutions is at an all-time low. To you, the media, may I offer some advice. You have to earn the trust of the Australian people. I am confident I can. Can the media say the same thing?"

MUMBRELLA RESPONSE 15/5/26

Statement attributable to SBS spokesperson:

"SBS does not provide commentary on the policies of political parties, consistent with our obligations as an impartial public broadcaster."

On background:

SBS has been producing original content for Australians for over 50 years, including multilingual news and information that helps new Australians more successfully settle in and participate in life in Australia.

QUERY:

S47F

I'm reaching out to request a statement from SBS regarding comments we recently received from a representative of Pauline Hanson's One Nation outlining the party's intention to announce a policy that would remove all taxpayer funding from SBS.

Please let me know if SBS would like to provide a response and feel free to give me a call when you can to discuss further.

[EXCERPT]

"One Nation will be releasing a formal policy regarding the ABC and SBS in coming weeks. Broadly, we don't support ongoing taxpayer funding for the SBS. It was created to provide content from overseas in pre-internet days; there's no longer any need for taxpayers to fund that."

Hi All,

Thoughts on this – we do have a good story to tell – should go past 10 million cumulative reach tomorrow – so that's over a third of the Australian population who have tuned in already. Obviously, we would have prep him to knock back any One Nation related questions.

If we do it, we could confirm on Monday (blame his travel for not being able to confirm sooner) so we have the Sunday numbers before and also it will be a bit more distant from Pauline's speech.

Cheers,

Hi s22

Could I request an interview with Ken Shipp to talk about World Cup and the initial impressive ratings? It would be for a Mumbrella feature and ideally be after the Aust v USA clash, perhaps next Monday or Tuesday.

If Ken in Sydney I could do in person on Monday, otherwise on the phone.

Would only need 20 minutes.

Media Statement

22 June 2026

Hands Off SBS

The Federation of Ethnic Communities' Councils of Australia (FECCA) strongly rejects calls by Senator Pauline Hanson to dismantle one of Australia's greatest institutions the Special Broadcasting Service (SBS) and suggestions that multiculturalism has failed in Australia.

SBS was born from Australia's commitment to inclusion and equal opportunity.

In 1975, multilingual radio stations 2EA in Sydney and 3EA in Melbourne were established to provide information about the then new national health insurance scheme, Medibank, in community languages. The overwhelming success of these services demonstrated the need for a permanent multilingual broadcaster.

Following the landmark Galbally Review of migrant services, SBS was formally established in 1978 by the Fraser Government. SBS was founded on a simple but powerful principle: that every Australian, regardless of language or cultural background, should have access to trusted information and should see themselves reflected in the national story.

FECCA was established shortly afterwards in 1979 to provide multicultural communities with a strong national voice. SBS and FECCA are sister institutions of Australian multiculturalism, SBS giving voice through broadcasting, FECCA through advocacy and representation. Together, we have helped shape a more democratic, inclusive, cohesive and confident Australia.

Today, SBS broadcasts in more than 60 languages and remains one of Australia's most trusted public institutions. Through SBS and NITV, Australians hear stories that reflect the full diversity of our nation, including the histories, cultures and continuing contributions of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

Australia's multiculturalism has always been about welcoming people from all over the world who have contributed to our nation and become proud Australians. A strong multicultural society and a strong national identity are not competing ideals, they are inseparable.

Calls to defund SBS ignore its history and its continuing importance.

"SBS is not a special interest broadcaster, it is a national institution that strengthens social cohesion, provides trusted news and emergency information, combats misinformation and helps millions of Australians participate fully in our democracy," stated Chair Peter Doukas OAM.

"At a time when many societies around the world are grappling with division and polarisation, Australia should be proud of what it has achieved. Our diversity is one of our greatest strengths, and institutions such as SBS are central to maintaining the trust, inclusion and shared sense of belonging that underpin our national success," stated Jill Morgan AM

Senator Hanson's call for a "monocultural" Australia is not only divisive, but also impossible. Our nation has been shaped by First Nations peoples and by successive waves of migration from around the world. Our diversity is not a threat to our identity; it is one of our greatest strengths.

FECCA will continue to stand alongside SBS and all Australians who believe that diversity, inclusion and a shared commitment to democratic values make our nation stronger.

Hi – FYI, from Paul Scarr's office – Liberal Senator from Queensland who is co-Chair of the Parliamentary Friends of SBS.

This is a perfect example of how the ongoing work we do building and consolidating support for SBS across all parties in Parliament delivers, including at those critical times when public support is needed.

We will draft Senator Scarr a letter to thank him for this statement of support – will also think about how we might appropriately surface to the staff who are worried about the One Nation statement.

Last week, Pauline Hanson stood up at the National Press Club and pledged to scrap the SBS. When an SBS journalist challenged her on the proposal, Hanson snapped back that she'll "be out of a job."

For millions of Australians, SBS isn't just another television station. It's where Australia sees itself whole. It's where 63 languages carry Australian news. Where the Socceroos play free, to everyone. Where the Australia that actually exists – made of people from every corner of the world – gets reflected back.

Hanson has made her position clear. Now the government needs to hear from the rest of us.

Will you stand with SBS and call on the government to guarantee its future?

SIGN THE PETITION

Here's the thing: SBS is only guaranteed funding for the next two years. After that, any government – including one that thinks SBS should never have existed – could switch it off. That's why we're calling on the government to guarantee SBS funding for the next five years, indexed to inflation, and put it beyond the reach of politicians who want it gone.

A few days ago, Socceroos star Awer Mabil sat down with SBS commentator David Basheer during the FIFA World Cup.

Mabil was born to South Sudanese parents in a refugee camp in Kenya before arriving in Australia as a child. During the interview, he stopped mid-conversation to thank Basheer.

"I grew up watching SBS as a kid because it was free TV," he said. "You doing the world game – that's where I used to see all of my highlights from all over the world of football. So firstly, thank you. You gave me good memories as a kid."

For fifty years, SBS has helped people find their place in Australia. It has told stories that commercial broadcasters wouldn't tell. It has connected communities that would otherwise be left behind.

SBS exists because some things matter more than profit.

That's also why Pauline Hanson wants it gone.

For three decades, Hanson has argued against the very idea of multicultural Australia. SBS is one of the clearest expressions of that Australia: confident, diverse, and comfortable with the fact that Australians come from every corner of the world.

The people who have made Australia home came from everywhere. They arrived with courage, history, food, music, grief, and hope. SBS has told their stories for decades.

Right now, while millions of Australians are watching the World Cup through SBS, Hanson has chosen this moment to put its future on the chopping block.

A petition signed by thousands of Australians who value SBS – right now, while this debate is happening – is something the government cannot ignore.

Will you add your name today?

ADD YOUR NAME →

GetUp exists because ordinary Australians refuse to let the most powerful voices decide who belongs here. Hundreds of thousands of us have fought for public broadcasting before. We've won. Let's do it again.

Conal – for the GetUp team

P.S. We're also planning a TV ad to air on SBS itself – right as millions of Australians are watching the World Cup – making the case for why it must be protected. If you want to help get it to air, we need members behind us. Sign the petition and let us know what you think in the survey that follows.

GetUp is an independent, not-for-profit community campaigning group. We use technology to empower Australians to have their say on important national issues. We receive no political party or government funding, and every campaign we run is entirely supported by voluntary donations. If you'd like to contribute to help fund GetUp's work, donate now! We collect, store and use personal information and other data as set out in our Privacy Policy. Our team acknowledges the Traditional Custodians of the land on which we meet and work. We wish to pay respect to Elders - past, present and emerging - and acknowledge the important role all Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people continue to play within Australia and the GetUp community.
